Title: Lou Costa Collection on Fox Point

Creator: Costa, Louis, 1937-2021

Dates: c.1843-2019

Quantity: 24 manuscript boxes, 4 small boxes, 1 oversized box, 3 album boxes, 1 oversized photo in flat file (approx. 16 linear feet).

ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION

Acquisition: Gift of Louis Costa, 2016; material was added in 2016 and 2021.

Accruals: No additional accruals are expected.

Custodial history: Materials were collected by Louis Costa, while the majority of items were created by others. Mr. Costa worked within his network to encourage donations to his collection. Though he did not secure any documentation about the donations, it is assumed that all were made voluntarily. Mr. Costa was helped in his efforts by a number of people including Professor Annie Valk of Brown University's Center for Public Humanities and her graduate students, as well as members of the Fox Point Community including Phyllis Pacheco and Johnny and Ernie Costa (no relation).

Processed by: The collection was processed in 2021 by Jessica Rogers-Cerrato.

Conservation: Not applicable.

Language: Materials are in English. Very limited materials in Cape Verdean Creole (also spelled Kriolu or Kriol) and Portuguese.

RIGHTS AND ACCESS

Access: No restrictions in the Deed of Gift. This collection is open under the rules and regulations of the Providence Public Library, Special Collections department. Note, one item from the Fox Point Boys & Girls Club series is restricted for a period of 100 years from the point of creation due to the sensitive nature of the material. Thus this item is restricted until 2045.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Louis Costa (1937-2021), also known as Lou or Lulu, was born in Providence, RI in 1937. He was one of five children born to Antonio and Maria de Lourdes (Raposo-Silva) Costa. Growing up as an Azorean American in the Fox Point neighborhood, he frequented the local Boys' Club and as an adult remained very engaged with the Boys' Club Alumni Association as well as the Portuguese American Social Club. In July of 1968, he married Judith Soares, also of Fox Point. Together they raised seven children: Louis, Jason, Jennifer, Aaron, Michael, Timothy, and Jessica. Mr. Costa had a distinguished and extensive military career in the Navy and was inducted into the Holland Club for submarine veterans in 2005. His military service was followed by years as an electrician and an air conditioning/refrigeration technician.

In the early 2000s, along with his life-long friend Johnny Costa (no relation), Mr. Costa began compiling materials for what would become the Lou Costa Collection on Fox Point. Inspired by his deep love for the neighborhood, and the community therein, he spent nearly two decades gathering, organizing, and documenting items related to Fox Point and the families who have lived and worked there. Louis Costa died in February of 2021 at the age of 84 surrounded by his family.

The Fox Point neighborhood is geographically situated on the southernmost tip of Providence's East Side, at the intersection of the Providence and Seekonk Rivers. As such, it has historically been an important hub for maritime commerce. Due in part to its location, Fox Point was part of Providence's earliest settled area; in fact, Roger Williams landed at the present day intersection of Gano and Williams Streets. The city's first wharf was built at the end of what is now Transit Street in about 1680. In the 1790s, harbor development intensified and Fox Point became the city's transportation center. The neighborhood's identity as an immigrant and ethnic enclave began in 1813 with the establishment of Rhode Island's first Catholic church. Following the erection of the church, Fox Point's Irish community grew rapidly and soon the waterfront section came to be known as "Corky Hill." A second Catholic church, St. Joseph's, was established in 1853, and by 1865 half or more of the neighborhood was foreign-born.

A second wave of immigration began in the 1870s with the arrival of Portuguese, Azorean, and Cape Verdean communities. Many Portuguese families attended St. Joseph's church until the formation of the Our Lady of the Holy Rosary church in 1885. This church still sits at the southern end of South Main Street alongside Interstate 195. In addition, the Sheldon Street Congregational Church, also founded in the late 19th century as a Protestant affiliated church and one of Providence's oldest Black churches, served the Cape Verdean community and remains prominent today. Fox Point's Cape Verdean community is one of the oldest and largest in the United States, along with that of New Bedford, MA. Cape Verdean Americans maintain the distinction of being one of the only groups from the African continent who came to the US by choice rather than through bondage, having first arrived in the Americas through participation in whaling and other maritime industries. In 1922, the US enacted immigration laws restricting peoples of color, greatly impacting Cape Verdean immigration.

Fox Point was among the worst hit areas during the Hurricane of 1938. By the 1940s, much of the waterfront area was deemed abandoned and so was transformed into India Point Park. Construction began on Interstate 195 in 1956, forever altering the character and community of Fox Point. The Providence Redevelopment Agency, working from a mandate provided for by the federal Housing Act of 1949 and the RI state Redevelopment Act of 1956, documented the area as part of the East Side Renewal Project in the early 1960s, culminating in the Official Redevelopment Plan of 1966. This urban renewal era project resulted in the destruction or removal of many homes and businesses in the area, and many Portuguese and Cape Verdean families were forced to move to the city of East Providence as well as to New Bedford, MA. This, coupled with the aggressive purchasing of property by Brown University, led to a steep decline in Fox Point's Portuguese, Azorean, and Cape Verdean communities during the mid to late 20th century. The Fox Point Boys & Girls Club, Holy Rosary Church, and Sheldon Street Church remain important neighborhood institutions, and Fox Point's diasporic communities continue to gather together in honor of their historic ties to the area.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS OF THE COLLECTION

This collection is composed of photographs, media, and printed materials related to the Fox Point neighborhood of Providence, RI, with a focus on the diverse people and communities of the area. Represented throughout the collection are materials related to Fox Point's Cape Verdean, Azorean, and Portuguese communities. Materials on Cape Verdean families can be found within the Photos by Surname subseries (1.1) as well as within the Cape Verdean Community series (3), which also includes photography and slides by Cape Verdean community activist Oling Jackson and documentation relating to the package ship Ernestina-Morrissey and to a lesser extent the Madalan. In addition, there is a great deal of material centered in and around certain neighborhood institutions, such as the Fox Point Boys & Girls Club, Fox Point Manor, and Our Lady of the Holy Rosary church.

Of note are a series of photographs taken by the Providence Redevelopment Agency between 1962 and 1965 as part of the East Side Renewal Project, which saw the destruction of a significant portion of the neighborhood in order to expand highway development.

Collection materials date from c.1843-2019, with most of the materials from the mid 20th century. While the bulk of the collection is photographs, other items include community newsletters, reunion programs, church bulletins, obituaries, newspaper clippings, event fliers, annual reports, business cards and ephemera, yearbooks and annuals, photocopies, videos, and personal reminiscences.

ORGANIZATION OF THE COLLECTION

The collection is arranged into 6 series: Photographs (1), Fox Point Boys & Girls Club (2), Cape Verdean Community (3), Providence Redevelopment Agency (4), Printed Materials (5), and Video (6). All of these, except for series 6, are further divided into subseries. Where possible, series and subseries are organized by the originator of the materials; that is to say, by the organization, group, or individuals responsible for creating and maintaining the materials before they were gathered into this collection. All other materials are arranged by subject.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE COLLECTIONSeries 1: PhotographsExtent: 7 linear feet (13 manuscript containers, 3 album boxes, and oversized materials box)Dates: c.1843-2018Arrangement: Alphabetical within each subseries.

Note: Series 1, Photographs, is arranged into 4 subseries: Photos by Surname (1.1), Photos by Subject (1.2), Tommy Gomes Photos (1.3), and Family Albums (1.4). In Photos by Surname, files contain all associated surnames; researchers should not assume family connections between all individuals. Note - Pike Street was renamed Alves Way on April 4th, 1998, in honor of the Alves family, who lived on that street for 16 generations. In 2021, the intersection of Ives Street and Wickenden Street was renamed Britto Way in tribute to the Britto family, in particular John “Johnny” Britto and Eufemia “Fama” Britto, two lifelong Fox Point residents and pillars of their community. Tommy Gomes was a custodian at Fox Point Manor for many years and photographed numerous community and cultural events. See also: Series 3, Cape Verdean Community.

Series 2: Fox Point Boys & Girls ClubExtent: 1 linear foot (2 manuscript containers, 1 album box, & some oversized materials)Dates: 1915-2015Arrangement: Alphabetical within each subseries, except for Reunion Programs (2.3) which is arranged chronologically.

Note: Series 2, Fox Point Boys & Girls Club, is arranged into 4 subseries: Photos (2.1), Printed materials (2.2), Reunion Programs (2.3), and Discipline Ledger (2.4). Note, access to subseries Discipline Ledger (2.4) is restricted until 2045. The Fox Point Boys & Girls Club is the oldest continually operating club of its kind in the country, having been founded in 1868 as the Union for Christian Work and becoming the Providence Boys Club in 1899, and was formerly located at South Main and Powers Streets. The Club, an integral community hub, was demolished as part of the urban renewal projects of the late 1960s and early 1970s. In 1973, led by Marcus Andrade, at the time the president of the Boys Club Alumni Association, a deal was struck for a new location, averting an attempted shutdown. A new Club was opened in 1978 at its current location of 90 Ives St; this space also houses the Fox Point Senior Center and the Fox Point Community Library. It wasn't until 1981 that the Fox Point Boys Club would officially become known as the Boys & Girls Club. See also: subseries 1.3, Tommy Gomes Photos.

Series 3: Cape Verdean Community

Extent: 1 linear foot (2 manuscript containers & oversized materials box)

Dates: 1934-2010

Arrangement: Alphabetical by subseries, except for Oling Jackson Photography (3.3) which is arranged chronologically.

Note: Series 3, Cape Verdean Community, is arranged into 3 subseries: Photographs (3.1), Printed materials (3.2), and Oling Jackson Photography (3.3). The subseries Oling Jackson Photography is further organized by Photographs (3.3.1) and Slides (3.3.2). Fox Point's Cape Verdean community is one of the oldest and largest in the United States. Oling R. Jackson (1927-2003) was a well-respected figure and activist in the Fox Point Cape Verdean community, as well as a skilled photographer. He was Chairman of the RI Friends of the Ernestina-Morrissey and Director of the Providence/Praia Sister City Committee, Inc. Mr. Jackson frequently visited Cape Verde in the 70s and 80s and he documented these trips through numerous photographs, including a trip in 1975 when Cape Verde finally received its independence from Portugal's colonial rule. He often presented at local cultural festivals and events; some of the material here was created in conjunction with these presentations and slideshows and is labeled as such. Series 4: Providence Redevelopment AgencyExtent: 1 linear foot (4 slim boxes)Dates: 1962-1965Arrangement: Alphabetical by street name.

Note: Series 4, Providence Redevelopment Agency, is arranged into 2 subseries: Photographs (4.1) and Printed materials (4.2). The Providence Redevelopment Agency, working from a mandate provided for by the Federal Housing Act of 1949 and the RI State Redevelopment Act of 1956, documented the Fox Point area as part of the East Side Renewal Project from 1962-1965, culminating in the Official Redevelopment Plan of 1966. This urban renewal era project resulted in the destruction or removal of many homes and businesses in the area in order to expand highway development. Many Portuguese and Cape Verdean families were forced out of the neighborhood, forever altering the character and community of Fox Point.
